The editorial team congratulates all the graduands, and we are so proud of all you have accomplished. You have worked hard to develop your skills and knowledge and are now ready to go out into the world and make a difference.

Remember, "It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, who comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who neither know victory nor defeat." Theodore Roosevelt

As you enter the world, I encourage you to be bold and ambitious. Don't be afraid to take risks and pursue your dreams. Remember, you have the power to create your future.

Ladies and gentlemen, What an excellent and heartwarming occasion to witness the gathering of these young and bright minds on a day that signifies a significant milestone in their lives! It takes me back to the days of my youth when, much like all of you, I sat with eager anticipation, waiting for that cherished moment of becoming a graduate. And even though many years have passed, I still believe there's nothing quite like this occasion, so sweet and memorable, in one's life. Through my own experiences, I've understood that once you graduate, doors open one after another. Job opportunities await you, families are excited to welcome a new honor, and friends can't wait to celebrate with you. But what's truly important is the inspiration you provide to countless others. Those who never dared to set foot in a classroom might regret their indecisiveness. Others teetering on the edge of dropping out will find new determination to carry on. On behalf of myself, my family, and my friends, I want to offer my heartfelt congratulations to all of you. This is a remarkable achievement, and I encourage you to look at it with a fresh perspective.

Graduation is a significant life milestone, and it indeed calls for anyone and everyone to say, “Congratulations, Graduands!” Today, you are no longer a raw material but a finished outcome of many years of hard work and dedication. Today’s college sends you to the world convinced of your ability and agility to handle the market dynamics. You must approach the job market not as a job seeker but as a job creator, for this is the core principle of entrepreneurial skills that all of you in the school of business have been impacted with. Finally, as per Martin Luther King Junior, If you can’t fly, then run. If you can’t run, then walk. If you can’t walk, then crawl, but whatever you do, you have to keep moving. If the first option does not work, invent millions of opportunities; indeed, one will work.

Congratulations, and welcome to impact our society positively.
We are so proud of you and honored to celebrate graduation day with you!
